Newsletter circulates next week

By Allen Browning

The first issue of Student Sentinel, student government's biweekly newsletter will be distributed Monday on campus, according to Richard Smoot, editor and graduate student in oral history.

"I'm very pleased with the way the first issue is going," Smoot said. "For the first issue it's going to be pretty good, but it will improve with more input."

Brian Angle, student government president agreed. "I'm not apologizing for it," Angle said. "It is a first issue and we think it is a good newsletter."

The newsletter will be distributed in Parthenon boxes around campus, for the first issue, according to Angle that may change.

"The Board of Publications will have to make a decision Tuesday on whether we can use boxes for subsequent issues," Angle said.

Smoot said first issue stories include articles on student government, general campus information, MU Artist's Series and an upcoming activities sponsored campus visitor.

A lack of student organization response meant that most information in the issue had to be found, according to Angle.

"We had to recruit most of our information for this issue," Angle said. "Only four organizations sent in stories."

The lack of response was probably because of the wait and see attitude on their part, according to Angle. "They will probably want to see the way the first issue looks before sending in articles," Angle said.

The newsletter will be printed by Quick Copy of Huntington, with the typesetting being done by Chris Grundlatch in the Chafin office building, Huntington.

Angle said that the cost of the newsletter is $365 per issue. The printing cost is $300; typesetting, $35; reporters' salaries and supplies, $30.

The next issue of the letter will be March 23 with the deadline for submitting articles, March 17.

One facet of the newsletter is that it will not have editorials.

"We intend to present the facts and let people draw their own conclusions," Smoot said. "I don't think it's proper to editorialize in a newsletter. The newsletter will not cover so much the views of student government, but what they do."

The newsletter will be evaluated in early April to determine student interest in the letter. This information will have to be used by the president to determine if the letter is to be continued.

Provost to return to MU duties Monday

By Elizabeth Bevins

Provost Olen E. Jones Jr. will return to his duties at Marshall Monday after a nine month's leave-of-absence.

Jones has been serving as acting president at the West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine in Lewisburg since June 1. Since then, President Robert B. Hayes has been serving as both president and provost of Marshall.

Jones was asked by the Board of Regents to act as president of the medical school after President Francis J. Hennessy resigned. Clyde Jenson, former president of the Oklahoma College of Osteopathic Medicine, will take over as president of the Lewisburg school Monday.

Jones will resume his responsibilities as provost as soon as he gets back, according to Dr. Sam Clagg, chairman of the University Council. "He'll be running like Tarzan to try to catch up."

A reception is being planned by the Faculty Service Committee to welcome Jones home, Clagg said.

Faculty, professional librarians, administrators, deans and their spouses are invited to the reception, Clagg said. The reception will be a "cookie and punch type of thing," he said.

The reception will be from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Memorial Student Center Alumni Lounge.

Staff shortage causes problem

By Crystal Obomanu

Staff shortages and the absence of an assistant dean are causing problems for the College of Business, according to President Robert B. Hayes.

Delores J. Cook, former Admissions/Records Officer II in the College of Liberal Arts, was transferred this week by Hayes to work as office manager in the College of Business. Cook was promoted to Admissions/Records Officer III and Office Manager in a temporary six month position, Hayes said.

"She was transferred to work as office manager because the College of Business has had some staff problems," Hayes said. "They have two position vacancies, the details of which I'm unsure," Hayes said.

The vacancies occurred Feb. 8 when two secretaries resigned "under protest" after what they termed "unfair disciplinary action."

Personnel Director, Ray A. Nissen, said that temporary positions can be assigned only if funding is available and proper justification for the appointment is presented. "There is no advertising for these positions because the immediate shortage makes it necessary," Nissen said.

Dr. Sara T. Anderson, dean of the College of Business, temporarily assigned Maj. Gordon B. Jobe, of the Department of Military Science, extra duties in the college.

"I have no official title but I am doing some of the duties an associate dean would," Jobe said. "My position is temporary until summer because there is a search committee which is currently looking for a permanent associate dean."

His new duties include academic advising. Jobe is the recruitment and enrollment officer and an assistant professor in the Department of Military Science.

"It is a chance to do something new," Jobe said.

At the end of the temporary assignment period decisions are made as to whether or not the person occupying the position remains or another person under consideration is hired, Nissen said. If the person in the temporary position is not kept permanently then they are placed back in their former position, he said.

FRIDAY

outside...

The skies today will become increasingly cloudy with a high near 50 according to the National Weather Service at Tri-State Airport.

There is a chance of showers Friday night with a low near 43.

The high Saturday will be near 65 degrees.

Winds will be from the north at 10 m.p.h. throughout the forecast period.

Handsome tenor yet to be chosen for musical

By Tim Miller

Release of the official cast list for the Marshall Theatre production of "Grease" has been delayed because of problems of filling all the roles.

Auditions for two remaining parts will be at 3 p.m. today in Smith Music Hall Room 305, the office of Joel D. Folsom, music director of the play.

"We have not cast the part of Johnny Casino or the part of the teen angel," Dr. Elaine A. Novak, professor of speech and drama director of the play, said.

"We had 58 people audition, and we did that in a space of four hours. By the time we finished, we just couldn't remember how some people sang and whether they would be suitable or not," Novak said.

Novak and Folsom decided that rather than try to cast too many roles quickly, they would listen to more singers.

"The teen angel has very specific requirements," Novak said. "Actually, we didn't think we had anyone who auditioned who could sing teen angel because it's such a high part."

Not only is the person assigned to play the teen angel required to be able to sing high notes, but he must also meet certain physical characteristics, Novak said. "The script calls for him to look like Fabian or one of those glamorous male singers of the '50s period."

We just didn't think we had anybody who really looked the part who could sing that very high tenor that the teen angel has to sing," Novak said.

All groups encouraged to register for dance

By Shirley Birdwell

Aching backs, swollen feet, sleepy eyes and satisfaction may be just a few things felt by some students following the 24-hour Muscular Dystrophy Superdance on March 27 and 28.

Workshop today

Sharing your faith...that's what today's Share Seminar Workshop is all about.

Jim Fudate, campus director of the Baptist Student Union, said the seven hour workshop will start at 7 p.m. today and conclude with a session at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Fugate said he hopes to help students learn to share their faith, upgrade their self-image, and deal with relationships with other people.

The workshop is open to any student and the only cost is a workbook may be purchased at cost.

The MDA Superdance, sponsored by WKEE in conjunction with Marshall University, is conducting registration through March 6.

Anyone can dance. "We're encouraging dorm floors to dance together and challenge each other," Tina Hardman, Weston junior and co-chairman, said. "This is an individual dance-a-thon. A lot of girls think that if they don't have a guy that they can't dance. That's not so; a group of girls can dance together," Hardman said.

"We need support from the whole Marshall community," Rick Welch, co-chairman, said. "We have a goal of $20,000 and we think with a good turnout we can reach that goal," Welch, Middletown, N.Y., Senior, said.

Last year Marshall raised the most money in the state, Hardman said.

Registration is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the student center cafeteria and from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the lobby of Twin Towers West.

The next organizational meeting is at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Room 2W29 in the student center.

Day at legislature set

The third annual Women's Day at the Legislature will be March 6.

Women's Day at the Legislature is the day set up for the women of West Virginia to gain more knowledge concerning current legislation, and ways women can contribute to the legislative process.

The day at the legislature also offers women the opportunity to tour the state capitol, attend workshops and visit the different committees and general sessions of the legislature. The day will conclude with a reception at the governor's mansion.

Patricia Matters, adviser to the women's center, said that because of the large and unexpected turnout of interested women in the state, registration had to be closed early.

Matters said that originally 20 people from the Marshall community had planned to attend the conference, but due to pre-registration being closed, only two people had their registration turned in and can still attend.

"We expected a good turnout this year, but we didn't expect this kind of response," Matters said.

Play for deaf opens Monday in Old Main

"The Illiad, Play by Play," will be presented by the National Theatre of the Deaf, Monday, at 8 p.m., in Old Main Auditorium.

Taken from Homer's classic epic "The Illiad," this production takes place in a football stadium as a major league football game, complete with sportscasters and cheerleaders.

The lines are given in sign language. However, there are three actors who provide spoken lines.

In addition to the production, members of the National Theatre of the Deaf will conduct a 90 minute workshop at 2:30 p.m. in Memorial Student Center Multi-Purpose Room.

The workshop will stress theatrical expression through use of the total body. It will cover basic movement, kinetic imagery, sign language and mime techniques.

The production is funded from a grant from the West Virginia Arts and Humanities Commission.

"This production is most important for handicapped people and so others can see and identify with the handicapped," Nancy P. Hindsley, cultural events coordinator, said.

Tickets for the play are available in MCS Room 2W38. Admission is free to students with ID and activity card, $2.50 with ID only, and $5 for general public.

Homer's classic, with a few variations, comes to life Monday, when The National Theatre of the Deaf presents "THE ILLIAD, Play by Play."

Laidley Hall renovations begin in May

Renovations ranging from overhauling the restrooms to Marshall's first dormitory sauna are scheduled to begin in May in Laidley Hall.

Ray Welty, assistant director of housing, said drafts are being reviewed, and the bidding process should begin soon. "We hope the renovations will be completed by the end of the summer," he said.

Complete renovation of the restrooms are the main concern of the housing office, Welty said. "Right now, the bathrooms keep the plumber pretty busy, so we feel that everything should be replaced in the restrooms."

Another addition to Laidley could be the implementation of a sauna on the first floor of the residence hall, Welty said. The possibility of subsequent saunas on the other floors is virtually impossible because of the plumbing setup, he said.

Thefts plague MU community

Several thefts have been reported to the Security Office during the past week.

Four large cast-iron radiators in storage at University Heights were reported stolen sometime between Friday and Monday. The radiators were property of Marshall, and their value is unknown.

Two hundred dollars in cash was reported stolen from Smith Music Hall, Room 154A between Saturday and Monday.

A slide projector was reported stolen from Smith Hall, Room 778B. The projector was property of Marshall and its value is unknown.

A radio antenna was reported stolen from a vehicle in the motorcycle parking lot between Morrow Library and Smith Hall sometime Wednesday night. The antenna is valued at $50.

Literature publication seeks editor

It's a new year for Et Cetera, the MU literature publication, and the position of editor needs to be filled.

Any full time student may apply by submitting a sample of his writing, and a letter of recommendation from a professor to the English department office.

The deadline is March 27, and the editor will be announced in April.

FOR THE RECORD

Security, safety problems plague 'Herd heaven'

Before Marshall's Thundering Herd gets the opportunity to bury its basketball foes at the Henderson Center, lax security and safety deficiencies may bury a little child. The partially constructed physical education facility has plenty of safety restraints to prevent an experienced construction worker from falling two or three stories, but for a young child, it is a different story.

Every weekend kids from five to 15 pour into future Herd Heaven. Sometimes a child is accompanied by several friends, sometimes he is not.

Numerous entrances provide easy access to the multi-level facility. Once inside, however, the entrances seem to disappear as the monstrous size of the building leaves one wandering from corridor to corridor. To college students, such a maze probably would be an adventure, but to a little kid, an adventure can grow rapidly into panic.

Little kids enjoy the oddly shaped building because it is great to play hide-and-seek in along with a number of other games. In addition, the entire facility is lighted. If it is raining outside, the Henderson Center provides a dry place to play tag or cops and robbers.

Playing games or wandering through the building exploring the different rooms is great fun. The problem comes if one of those children begins to play a little too hard and trips over a board, falling onto a piece of heavy equipment, three stories below. Or if a little girl, thinking she is lost, panics and falls down a row of concrete stairs onto a sharp tool.

To avoid such a needless tragedy, Marshall President Robert B. Hayes should see that steps are taken to make it harder to gain entrance to the building.

To do this, Marshall's security could patrol the area on a regular basis not only during the week, but during the weekend. In addition, all entrances could be boarded or locked up to discourage kids from playing in the building. By taking steps, Marshall will have at least made an effort to prevent a child's injury or death.

The Cam Henderson Center is in memory of a great basketball and football coach. It should not be in memory of a little kid who never was given the opportunity to become great.

Gold Mine in Mall rich in color, sound

By Kim Madlom

Bright lights and the sound of a major space war bring your senses to life when you walk through the door.

The Gold Mine in the Huntington Mall has over 30 games blinking brilliant colors and ringing sounds of explosions and inter-galactic warfare to attract customers with a sense of adventure and a quarter.

Milton Hunt, manager of the Gold Mine, estimates that more than 100 people play the games each day.

"It gets pretty crowded in here from time to time," Hunt said. "People stand in line for some of the games."

John P. West, a Charleston senior, is an avid fan of the video-screen games.

"I probably spend $10 a week on the games," West said. "Everytime I go someplace to eat or if I go into a bar, I always get a pocket full of quarters so I can play the games."

Hunt and West agree that the biggest attractions in the video-screen games are Asteroids and Battlezone.

Battlezone is a futuristic war game in which the player must destroy the enemy by firing missiles. Battlezone has many of the sounds of real war.

Asteroids is comprised of a rocket which the player fires into the approaching meteors which are bombing the rocket.

"I like games that take some concentration and quick reflexes," West said. "Both of these games require fast thinking."

Space Invaders, which opened up the world of electronic video games, has reached its peak and is rapidly on the decline, West said.

"Galaxian killed Space Invaders when it came on the market," West said. "Galaxian is quicker and more colorful. Everyone plays these games because they want to conquer, and the harder the game, the greater the desire to win."

There is a new game on the market that has quickly become a major draw to adventuresome customers, West said. It is called Pac Man.

The object of the game is to make the circle move through the maze and destroy all of the dots, while keeping itself from being destroyed.

"This is a great game," West said. "It is exciting, yet it is simple. Also, it makes great sounds and has bright flashing lights."

Wirt Ferrel, owner of Ferrel Music Co., which is a local distributor of electronic games, said that Pac Man is the most requested game on the market.

"It is getting really big in this area," Ferrel said. "We have had several requests for the game, but we are having some trouble getting it in."

Ferrel said that the average cost of an upright video-screen game ranges from $2,395 to $2,495. The cocktail table games range from $2,245 to $2,395.

"We have a larger demand for the cocktail games for restaurants and clubs," Ferrel said. "But for places that feature several games, our biggest demand is for the upright games."

West said that he always prefers to play on the upright games. "I like the big screens and it is more comfortable to stand. You can react a lot faster when you are playing on a game with a big screen."

The video-screen games, both upright and cocktail, are turning up in almost every form of business including the theatre, doughnut shops and barber shops.

"Electronic games are in," West said. "Everyone likes them and the games are addictive."

French classic to be shown Sunday

"The Man Who Loved Women," the first in a series of French films by director Francois Truffaut, will be shown Saturday at 4 and 7 p.m. in Science Hall Auditorium.

The film portrays the life of an engineer, Bertrand, whose only pastime is the pursuit of women, Greg A. Wood, Charleston junior and co-chairman of the Cinema Arts Committee, said.

The film begins with Bertrand's funeral, attended only by women, and recounts his life as he is writing his autobiography, Wood said.

For Truffaut, the human presence, preserved and communicated within an artwork is the most important element in any film, Wood said.

Admission is free.

'The Rose' showing on campus today

"The Rose," the story of a rock star who can't reconcile public adulation and her own loneliness, will be shown today at 3 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. in Science Hall Auditorium.

Bette Midler, in the starring role, was nominated for best actress in the 1979 Academy Awards. Others starring in the film are Alan Bates, Frederick Forest, and Harry Dean Stanton.

The film is based on the life of Janis Joplin, a rock star.

Admission is free for students with I.D. and activity card, $1 with I.D. only, and $2 for general public, Breeden said.

Classical guitarist to perform at Coffeehouse

Sonny and Cher, Brook Benton, Paul Desmond and the Drifters, are just some of the artists Vince Lewis has performed with as a sideman in road acts.

Lewis and his band will be playing in the Sundown Coffeehouse today at 9 p.m.

Lewis has been a professional musician for 17 years. He has performed with chamber groups both as a guitarist and bassist, and has given numerous solo and duo performances around the state as a classical guitarist.

Bob Thompson will play piano for the jazz band. He has played with top artists and the house bands at Holiday Inns. He founded the local jazz rock group "Joi."

Bass player for the group is H.S. (Rabbit) Jones. He has traveled with bands such as the Platters, Muddy Waters and was a free-lance bassist in Chicago before coming to West Virginia.

The drummer, Steve Campbell, has played for Gino Vannelli, George Benson and Thad Jones.

The band will be featuring jazz in their Friday night performance.

Saturday and Sunday, the coffeehouse features the giant screen television.

Students have one week before break

By Terri Scarberry

This is it, the last weekend before spring break. Most travel plans are made and bags are packed in anticipation of sun, sand and parties.

Just think, this time next week you'll be wheeling down the highway toward rest and relaxation and away from all your books and professors. Right?

Well, most of you will. But there will be some of us left behind. Low funds, term papers or doting parents will keep us from the sunny shores of Florida.

Instead of basking in sunshine, we'll be basking in lamp light while listening to the strains of Dr. Journalism speak on the laws reporters should be aware of when working in the jungles of Africa.

Instead of romancing with a new "beach love", we'll be holding onto a French textbook.

While all you lucky students are recovering from the night before by sleeping on the beach, we'll be stuck in some library frantically searching for the memoirs of a 1896 Neanderthal Reporter to trace the fascinating origin of (you'll never believe this one)-

Howard Hughes' grandmother's foreign accent.

Can it really be that after all we have faced in the beginning of this dreaded semester, we are to be doomed to a week with textbooks, tabulations and sheer torment from class tapes?

Surely not.

Do not despair. Fun can be found most anywhere. Read on!

The World Championship Rodeo will perform at the Civic Center March 6, 7 and 8. There will be specials nightly and the rodeo will feature events such as bareback bronc riding, calf roping, saddle bronc riding and steer wrestling.

If you can afford a few bucks and a little time, ski at Lakewood Village. (Check out the snow first.) Lakewood is close and can make an enjoyable day away from the books.

All your favorite Huntington haunts will be open (they don't take Spring Break) for late night drinks and snacks. Snak's Fifth Avenue, Michael's, and of course Verbs.

For real cultural experience, "The Elephant Man" is playing through this weekend. The movie is based on an award-winning Broadway play about a historical figure from Victorian England.

TERRI

If you're not into culture, but you would enjoy a movie, see the WKEE-FM midnight flick. "The Urban Cowboy" is playing featuring an American heart throb, John Travolta. Charlie Daniels will sing to you, and Gilley's nightclub will lure you into finding in electronic bull of your own to ride.

If all else fails and nothing seems to interest you, make your own Spring Break celebration. Scrape up a little sand, dig out your childhood swimming pool and plug in your sun lamp. With all the right props, you can pretend your at the beach. But most of all, thank God it's Friday and that Spring Break is coming soon.

Wrestling team travels to Boone for SC match

By April Parsons

One small, four-letter word expresses the feelings of the Wrestling Herd and its fans. That word is hope.

With a 9-14 dual meet record most people would think that all hope of a Southern Conference Championship was dead.

But not Coach Ezra Simpkins.

"We are still thinking No. 1, but Steve Hart's injury has changed the picture. He would definitely have been a contender for the championship."

In an effort to offset Hart's injury, Coach Simpkins has rearranged the wrestling line-up for the Southern Conference Tournament.

"We have dropped Chuck Hissom to the 167-pound class because the prospects of winning that weight class is better than at the 177-pound class."

"I think Hite, Thompson, Jones, Hissom and Sparks are prepared mentally, are healthy and have had a good schedule. If they are ever going to win anything they are going to win the conference," Coach Simpkins said.

"If we do have five winners and some others place in the top three, we can take the title. We should finish no worse than third unless we totally collapse."

The University of Tennessee-Chattanooga is favored to win the Tournament for the fourth time. However, according to Simpkins, several of the team members and other coaches are saying the Appalachian State team should be favored to win. The tournament will be held on Friday and Saturday in Boone, N.C., Appalachian State's home mat.

Gals close schedule with weekend road trip

By Linda Lively

And the beat goes on.

The women's basketball team bounced the basketball to the familiar losing beat Wednesday night after competing against the lady Mountaineers from Morgantown, 88-64.

The Green Gals' downfall this season has been their shooting. Against WVU the result was the same with a shooting average of 35 per cent.

The top scorer for the Gals was Karen Henry, Springfield, Ohio, sophomore, with 23 points. Henry has totaled 51 points alone, in the last two games for the Gals. Debbie Solomon, Greenport, New York, sophomore, followed with 18 points for the game and she led with 11 rebounds.

The leading point maker for the Mountaineers was Kathy Parson with 23 points. The WVU team now has a seasonal record of 14-18.

The Marshall team now has a seasonal record of 1-27.

On Monday, the Gals will step onto the court for the last time this season. And for the last time, they will try for the second win of the season.

But the try may prove to be a feeble attempt against the female powerhouse team from Kentucky at 7:30 p.m. in Lexington, Ky.

The Lady Kats, as of Tuesday, were 21-4 in this season, and they have been ranked in the country.

Herd's title hopes start at Davidson

By Keith Morehouse

It's time to separate the men from the boys. Yes, Marshall must travel to Davidson, N.C., to face the Davidson Wildcats in their not-so-friendly 2,400 seat Johnston gym.

Game time for the Saturday Herd-Wildcat game is 7:30 p.m. Marshall was allotted 500 tickets and sales began Wednesday and will continue through Friday until 6 p.m.

Marshall finished its conference season with a win over The Citadel. That victory evened the Herd's league record at 8-8. Furman also finished with an 8-8 record but will play third place Appalachian State by virtue of their record against conference leader UT-Chattanooga. Furman split with the Mocs while MU lost twice to the 11-5 Moccasins.

Marshall may have preferred to play Appalachian State, but the Herd has no choice now but to face the Wildcats. MU has never beaten Davidson in the tiny gym where Davidson plays only some of their games. Marshall was crushed by the Wildcats at Davidson earlier in the year 104-76, and lost by 28 points last year 81-53. Davidson also dealt Marshall its first loss at the field house this year in double overtime, 79-73.

"We have played well on the road in our last four games," Head Coach Bob Zuffelato said. "Going into Johnston Gym will be no picnic, we will have to play with all of our concentration, intensity, and emotion focused on the game."

Marshall ended the regular season with a somewhat disappointing 17-9 record. Marshall has lost three games in the buzzer in the last four games on the road.

One bright spot for Marshall during that season-ending road stretch was the play of freshman LaVerne Evans. The 6-4 Lockport, N.Y., native tallied 60 points in Marshall's last two games. He scored 24 points against Furman to earn a starting berth and responded with 36 versus The Citadel. Evans, who had been experiencing problems at the free throw line during the course of the year, has now canned his last 27 attempts.

Senior post player Ken Labanowski also played well in those last two games. He scored 35 points while grabbing 10 rebounds in Marshall's losing effort at Furman. He played steadily against The Citadel, scoring 13 points.

Marshall is still led in scoring by 6-4 wingman George Washington. GW is averaging 14.5 points per game. Labanowski and Greg White follow with 13.1 and 10.1 points respectively, and sophomore Charles Jones comes in at 9.7 points. Jones has scored 42 points in Marshall's two losses this year to Davidson.

Davidson will counter with what may be one of the best front lines in the conference. Todd Haynes leads the attack with a 19.7 average. Forward Rich DiBenedetto and center Jamie Hall average 24 points between them.

Haynes hit for 44 points in their two games against Marshall and DiBenedetto tallied 37. Marshall goes into the game hoping that the old axiom that it's tough to beat the same team three times in one season proves true.

Marshall track team climaxes indoor season at Lexington, Va.

By David A. Kosar

It's been a busy season for the Herd's indoor track season, and the final laps of the season are about to be run. This, the fifth year Marshall has competed in indoor track will come to an end this weekend, as the Herd travels to Lexington, Va., today, for the Southern Conference Championships indoor track meet.

During this two-day meet, coach Rod O'Donnell said the team will attempt to improve its fourth place finish of last year. "We'll have to run well to finish fourth, and we'll have to run really well to place third," O'Donnell said.

"Due to the fact we run like everyone else, we have more confidence going into this meet, because we've run more meets than anyone. It's not an edge, but more of equality."

In the four years the harriers have run in the Southern Conference Championship, the title has not come to Marshall. In 1980, the team placed fourth overall, finishing second in four events; 1979, another fourth place finish; 1978, a spot at fifth; and in its first championship meet, 1977, the squad came in sixth.

The Herd goes into this competition with a 2-2 dual meet record and three non-scoring invitationals run. The Herd last competed Feb. 14 in a triangular meet at Morehead, Ky.

Carrying the weightmen will be shot-putters Rudy Cebula and Shawn McWhorter. Cebula's best throw for the season is 54-9, while McWhorter's is 51-0. Cebula also finished second in both the 1980 indoor and outdoor conference meets.

Sprinters Joe Sassler and Cris Gibson will be seen in the 500 meters and 400 meters, respectively. Sassler has the Herd's best times for the season in the 400 meters (48.88) and the 500 meters (1:04.7).

Classical music expert here to conduct lectures

Karl Haas, the author and host of "Adventures in Good Music," daily hour-long broadcasts of classical music on WJR Radio, Detroit, will be at Marshall until Tuesday giving presentations, lectures and public performances.

Haas, originally from Germany, is founder and president of the Chamber Music Society of Detroit, and served as chairman of the State Council for the Arts under four Michigan governors.

Haas served as United States delegate to congresses of the International Music Council of UNESCO. He was consultant to the Ford Foundation in the fields of International Affairs, Mass Communication, and Arts and the Humanities. After the Berlin Wall was built, he conducted the Ford Foundation's cultural program as resident director in Berlin.

His five-day visit began Thursday with a commentary on the commonalities shared by the various art forms.

It will conclude Tuesday at 11 a.m. with a survey of artistic trends in 20th century arts.

The event is sponsored by the Marshall University Institute for the Arts, in cooperation with the Marshall Honors Program, Marshall Artists Series and West Virginia Public Radio.

Schedules for the event may be found on posters in various locations on campus.

Elephant Man acclaimed

By Cathy Neilson

The curtain at the Keith-Albee rose again for Marshall students in the balcony of the theatre Wednesday night.

For students, tickets to the highly acclaimed Elephant Man were free but precious. On sale for one day only, they were all given out within hours.

The Keith-Albee may be disfigured downstairs by the controversial "modernization" into three cinemas, but, in the balcony, the Keith-Albee is still the Keith-Albee.

The expectant audience was not disappointed. A fine cast was led by Joan Grant and Courtney Burr.

Grant stole the show with a precise and flawlessly projected interpretation of the actress, Mrs. Kendal, who was the one woman who saw beyond John Merrick's grotesquely abnormal body to his divinely molded mind.

Burr clearly and skillfully presented John Merrick as a pure child caught in the body of a male monster. Mr. Burr's exquisitely controlled body and voice suggest Merrick's abnormal condition brilliantly.

Brent Peek, the director, punctuates the lines of this play with his excellent blocking of the actors; Bernard Pomerance's well-wrought lines were applauded several times, thanks to the delivery demanded by Peek.

Unfortunately, the cast members, excluding Ms. Grant and Mr. Burr, used to more intimate theatres, or perhaps fooled by the artificial smallness of the main floor of the Keith-Albee, did not project their voices to the balcony well enough. Some lines were lost. But, nevertheless, all were moved and, undoubtedly, got their moneys worth.
